

Kivi is your discerning AI colleague who remembers your working world (not your inner world): Clients, projects, preferences. No more re-explanations. It comes in two temperaments. Anbu follows your explicit instructions, while Kootu draws on patterns from raw conversations to offer timely observations. Its appeal lies in its discretion. Uncertainty is stated, not acted upon. Every memory has a dated source that one can inspect, edit, or erase. Kivi makes continuity in work feel effortless all while allowing you to stay in control.